

ABSTRACT

The invention provides a method of modifying a substrate comprising the steps of providing a substrate comprising a base and a first metal, chemically-mechanically polishing the substrate, depositing a second metal onto the substrate, and polishing the substrate again to remove any metal overburden for a planarized surface with minimum metal loss.